

I am tall with leaves so high,
and birds may sit on me nearby.
I give shade on sunny days,
now find me where the branches sway.

onelittleproject.com

I hold letters every day.
The mailman brings them on his way.
Open me and take a peek,
if your next clue is what you seek.

Flowers grow in colors bright,
red and yellow, pink and white.
Plants and dirt all in a row,
this is where the best blooms grow.

I have wheels that spin around,
You can ride me on the ground.
Pedal fast and off you go,
Look around—it's close, you know!

onelittleproject.com

I am short and full of leaves,
sometimes shaped like little trees.
You can look behind me too,
cause I am hiding your next clue!

People knock or ring the bell,
your friends and family know me well.
Open me and step right through,
since your next clue is here for you.

I'm big and wide with space inside,
where cars and tools do like to hide.
A door goes up, a door comes down,
now look around this covered ground.

onelittleproject.com

I help the flowers drink each day,
pouring water as I sway.
With a handle and a spout,
look where I might hang about.

By the window, low and flat,
I'm a ledge—now think of that!
Not too big and not too tall,
look right here along the wall.

Old food scraps all go inside,
peels and bits we like to hide.
They turn to dirt along the way,
find this spot where scraps will stay.
